Tampa Bay Business Journal

Watson Clinic has begun construction on a 50,000-square-foot, three-story medical office building in Lakeland.

Watson Clinic is spending $14 million on the project, according to a spokeswoman.

The facility, at North Florida Avenue and East Bella Vista Street, will house the departments of otolaryngology, dermatology and dermatopathology. There will also be a medical spa with a private entrance and exit in the building and a hearing center.

Eleven physicians and five physician assistants will have offices in the building, which will have space reserved for additional growth. Construction is expected wrap up by January 2009, a release said.

Watson Clinic said it is working with Graham Design Associates, Precise Construction and Bank of America (NYSE: BAC) on the project.

The new building will be the 13th location for Watson Clinic, which includes more than 200 providers in 40 medical and surgical specialties.
